City Commission, Fired Manager Fail in Rehiring Try

Carle Withdraws Verbal Application Over Disagreement

The Belle Glade City Commission and former City Manager Tom Carle failed to reach an agreement Friday night in an attempt to rehire Carle after he was relieved of his duties at a storm session Thursday.

When the commission failed to agree to immediately take action on Carle's charter revision suggestion and verbal application for the position, which the city manager could fire the city manager, Carle withdrew his verbal application for the position, which the city manager could fire the city manager.

More than two hours of amicable agreement had been reached prior to the demands by the former city manager. All of the differences had been contributed to his firing were discussed with Carle and agreement had been reached on all important issues. Mayor Rabin had drawn statements from each of the commissioners individually and from the former city manager that they were open-minded and held no ill feelings as a result of the firing.

At the night before they had also indicated their belief that they could, and would, work harmoniously together if Carle's verbal application was approved and he again became the city manager.

It had been pointed out that the ordinance provisions which Mr. Carle insisted on were in conflict with the city charter which provides that the city manager will serve at the pleasure of the city commission. It also brought out that the charter revision which he sought would cost between $500 and $1,000 and could not be implemented until the necessary legislation was passed at the next session of the State Legislature and a referendum held at the time of the city election next September.

The Friday night meeting was called by the mayor when an overflow crowd at the Thursday meeting had expressed their displeasure at the firing of the city manager and pleas were made by Mrs. Ruth Wedgworth and Mr. Culley Collins that an understanding be attempted and the city manager rehired. Mayor Rabin complied with their request by calling the meeting for the Friday night and announcing that it would not be open for discussion. He said if there was an agreement reached the commissioners and the former city manager would have to work their difference without interruption or disturbance. The press and a small crowd of orderly, interested spectators were present at the meeting.

Following Mr. Carle's walk-out on the meeting the necessary steps were taken for the city to legally function with the city attorney present to advise. Mayor Rabin assumed the duties of chief executive of the city and requested each of the commissioners to sign a statement.

The first of what is planned to be annual football games between the Jaycees of Belle Glade and Clewiston is scheduled tonight at Memorial Field with introduction of participants to begin at 8 o'clock and the first set for 8:15.

The idea for the post season grid encounter was conceived by the two civic bodies as a fund raising undertaking for activities sponsored or assisted by them to furnish work and participation for stars, near stars, just players (and some never did play) in bygone days.

From all reports, training has been excellent. (Continued on page four)

"I think Barber was the best lineman Florida State had against us," Al said after the game. But he wouldn't take an credit for his own play.

"I couldn't seem to get started. It was my worst game of the season."

However, Al did get off on two sparkling runs that kept plays in getting Tampa down to the FSU four and seven yard lines in the last 10 minutes in the game. Barber was in the Spartans had scored on (Continued on Page 2)

Just Fair

Mrs. Marvin Under, president of the Belle Glade Woman's Club and chairman of the Christmas Seal booth committee, reports that through Tuesday of this week only $119.00 had been collected at the booths in the Post Office and the lobby of the Florida National Bank.

Funds collected through this undertaking are returned many times over to the Glades in combating TB. The disease is more prevalent in this section of the county than any other part due to the influx of migratory workers.

Paul Rogers To Seek Office Held By His Father

WEST PALM BEACH—Paul Rogers, 33-year-old attorney of this city, this week became the first announced candidate to succeed his father, the late David Rogers, as Congressman from Florida's Sixth District. The office was made vacant by the sudden death at Ft.

Lauderdale of Congressman Rogers who had just been re-elected to an office he had held for many years.

For a member of the law firm of Burns, Middleton, Rogers and Farrell, Rogers has been mentioned prominently throughout the district as the likely choice to succeed his father.

This is the first representative over-all county plan that has been adopted with the proposal that local folks have an obligation as well as the state in the area. It is forward-looking planning of a most constructive nature.

The Gold Coast attractiveness of Idlewild is being combined with the agricultural needs of the "back country" of Dade county to make a most attractive area for development.

Mr. Edward Garrett gave the dedicational opening of the meeting. Announcement was made of the bake sale and bazaar, sponsored by the society to be held in front of Collins Furniture Co. and in front of the Post Office, at 8:30 Saturday morning.

Mrs. George Parnall reported on the landscaping of the new church grounds, palm, hibiscus, crotons and other shrubs have been planted by members.

Basic Functions Of Flood Control Aired At Meeting

Indian River County Delegation Proposes Ideas After Study

A basic function of CASF Flood Control District was involved in discussions yesterday when Representative Sherman Smith of Indian River County is here to take action to eliminate the "bathtub of dikes" now going on in the first line west of the Vero Beach-Cocoa area.

"A restricted canal will dry up and ruin our farming land," engineer Carter told the board "and in flood times we and Sanford are under water. What by its own engineers and a conservation area to enable us to store water during flood times and dispose it during the dry months."

The board asked cooperative study by its own engineers with the Vero Beach folks and the U. S. Engineers to arrive at some prospective legislative action for relief.

Luther Chandler of Dade presented to the Board what he termed as "a Dade County Plan," which includes water control canals, dikes, bridges, levees, and other projects. However, a great many of the items in the plan are voluntarily designated as county obligations as distinguished from Flood Control District's obligations.

Administration Position Sound In Refusing More Millions For TVA.

Senator Estes Kefauver has come out with the flat statement that the signing of the Dixon-Yates contract will become a "running sore" for years to come, and because of his support for the measure, will cost President Eisenhower bipartisan support for his program in the new Congress.

We admire Senator Kefauver in many ways, and for many things. However, for him to come out with such a statement is most disappointing. It is an attitude to be expected from a self-seeking politician, bidding for votes in his home state. . . . but shows little, if any, appreciation of the basic issue involved.

The issue is both basic and simple. Shall the federal government go into the business of power production on a nation-wide scale, or shall the production of power, on an over-all basis, be left to private enterprise.

When he was running for the Presidency, General Eisenhower plainly stated he thought the federal government was getting too big, was in too many businesses and was competing in too many ways with private enterprise. He was just as plain in saying he thought the government should get out of business, wherever possible. The vote he received indicated pretty definitely that most of the American people liked that idea.

Certain facts are obvious. One of them is that, in the creation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the people within the area covered by the TVA got cheaper electric power. . . . and the taxpayers throughout the country got stuck for the hundreds of millions of dollars which it cost to build the TVA to give them this cheaper power. Could anything be more unfair!

Unfair or not, the people of Tennessee got the TVA. At no time, nor in any way, has President Eisenhower indicated he has in mind doing away with, or even curtailing, the TVA. Yet Senator Kefauver and many others have accused him of that. What his critics do not realize—or for sake of selfish politics, refuse to admit—is that, at no time, was there any commitment by the federal government, to sink more millions of taxpayers' dollars into the TVA every time its customers wanted more electric power.

The TVA never has made money. It never will. All it does is to absorb more tax dollars from other states to put out more cheap power in Tennessee. But, like all such federal projects, those who benefit are never satisfied—they want more and more. Nor can the politicians like Senator Kefauver, who represent those getting the benefits, afford to do anything but keep "the fair" when the gravy train is threatened. The starry-eyed unpromised tremendous progress and the development of a veritable Utopia. Did it come to pass? Maybe the fact that Tennessee is one of the slowest growing Southern states may furnish a partial answer.

The President of The United States is seldom quoted directly. However, in a letter to Rep. W. Sterling Cole, chairman of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, President Eisenhower makes some most pertinent comments. Following are a few excerpts:

"My general thinking on the subject is this: It seems to me that all arguments for the construction by the federal government of the additional steam plants ignore this one very important truth, that the federal government has no responsibility in perpetuity for providing the TVA area with all the power it can accept, generated by means whatsoever, it has a similar responsibility with respect to every other area and region ad corner of the United States of America."

"Logically, every section of the United States should have the same opportunities, and the federal government should not discriminate between the several regions in helping to provide this type of facility.

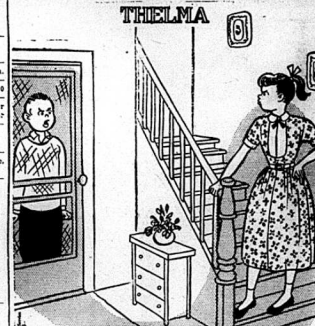

"I cannot believe that Americans, in general disapprove of attempting to place all regions on a basis of equality in this regard. Consequently, there must either be some re-examination of any plans which would call for the federal government to supply all the additional power, capacity that might be needed in the future in the Tennessee Valley, or logically we would have to begin plans for a gigantic power development to cover the entire nation equitably."

"It seems to me that there has been a very great deal of talk and argument—much of it partisan—about issues that are really clear and simple. No one in this administration has any intention of destroying or damaging TVA or of diminishing its effectiveness in any way. But this is not the same thing as fastening on the federal government a continuing and never-ending responsibility which I frankly do believe is logical or, in the long run, in the best interests of the country."

That certainly is clear-cut, objective analysis of the matter. It is simply a case of Big Government and Special Privilege in this case the people of Tennessee joining the rest of the country) against Private Enterprise. As President Eisenhower points out, it is to get more federal funds every time relative to refusing TVA is to get more federal funds every time relative to refusing to take more millions of public money into TVA.—Fort Pierce News-Press

"SOMEONE FOULED—IN GOING TO BROWN MYSELF IN A DOUBLE CHOCOLATE PIE"

BARBER, LEATHERS
those two threats, Al would have gone down as a hero. Both boys got off to quick starts in their college careers. Barber started eight out of 10 games as a freshman last year, although the six-foot-one-inch 215-pounder was competing with a number of linemen who had played several years of service football. This year he started five games, alternating with Ray Staab, but he said he has played better this year than last—"more experience" he explained.

Leathers had the handicap of being known as a "little brother" from the start. "Big brother" of course was Billy Joe—the familiar B. J. who thrilled Stetson fans for years and achieved Little All-American recognition before he graduated. B. J. is a second lieutenant with the paratroopers at Fort Campbell, Ky., but isn't playing football any more.

Al Leathers started at the University of Florida but didn't like it there. He transferred to Tampa and in his first football season led the team in scoring with 67 points. He had a sophomore slump the next year. "They were playing me at half-back and I wasn't fast enough," but this year had his best season.

If he has another year of football eligibility left, Al will probably play again next year. Otherwise, he may graduate at summer next year. A meeting is to be held next week to determine his eligibility.

Barber said he played his best game against Auburn, which started a hot streak against FSU and hasn't slowed down since, and will play in the Gator Bowl.

"They were big and good, but I had a good game against them," he said. He rated tackle Frank D'Agostino and fullback Joe Childers, both of Auburn, as the best players he faced this year.

"I got my best block of the season against Auburn," Barber said. "It was a screen pass to the right. I was on the passer and saw the passer was being trapped. I got up and put my arms on one block that got the passer loose."

My best tackle was against Georgia. Georgia had last down and a yard to go on our five. I got the quarterback on the line on option play before he could get rid of the ball.

If I think the Sun Bowl game will be a good thing for the school, I'll be a lot of recognition and I'll help us next year on experience. We're going to stay over in El Paso three days after the game and get a trip into Mexico. They say they're going to show us a good time out there."

Leathers had his best game this year against Appalachian, the strong team from Boone, N. C., that Tampa beat 25-14. His play has been highly improved in the last half of the season when the team lost to teams like East Carolina, Appalachian, and Florida State came along.

"Florida State was the toughest team we faced this year, but Chattanooga was the smoothest—even though we played them in the mud," he said.

The best back he faced this year? "I don't even know his name but there's no doubt about it—it was. He was the tailback for Mexico City. He was a California Mexican and he told them he'd play for them if they'd quit the T formation and use the single wing."

He weighed about 180 pounds and he could do everything. He could pass, kick and run. He could run over you or around you. Dick Young, Chat-my father, Dwight L. Rogers. My decision has been made after consulting with my family, with many of my father's friends and after prayerful consideration. I do this humbly and with a sincere thankfulness.

My philosophy of government and of service to the people is the same as my father's. My desire to be your Congressman is to serve individual needs within the power of the office and to reflect to the utmost of my ability the thinking and the wishes of the people of this great area of Florida on the matters which come before the Congress of the United States.

I sincerely solicit the active support of every citizen interested in good government with the assurance that, if elected, I will serve you with all the ability at my command in the tradition of my father, keeping uppermost in my mind the record of honor, integrity and ability of my predecessor.

Rogers, who was born in Ocala, Fla., was graduated from Fort Lauderdale High School and received his AB and LL.B. degrees at the University of Florida.

It was during the time that Rogers was studying law at the University that he gained considerable recognition as a member of the University debate team, winning a national championship and taking part in international debate competition with Oxford, England.

He served as president of the Florida Blue Key, the University's honor society and was toastmaster at the annual Blue Key dinner at the University. Homecoming celebration last October.

Rogers last year was picked by the West Palm Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce as the outstanding man of the year. He is first vice president of the West Palm Beach Kiwanis Club, the chairman of the Palm Beach County Heart Association Board, a member of the Jaycees and a member of the advisory committees of the Salvation Army and the South Eastern Tuberculosis Hospital at Lantana. Rogers is a member of the First Methodist Church and a teacher in the Men's Bible Class.

In World War 2, Rogers served in the United States Army and was discharged as a Major.

PAUL ROGERS TO (Continued from Page One) er in connection with the affairs of the sixth district, said he was very familiar with the congressional office, particularly those affairs which concern Florida's sixth district.

He has never before sought public office.

Rogers said that he shares the philosophy of his father which has always been a conservative view of government and economy in administration of public affairs.

"I believe that I can effectively continue the service that was my father's pleasure to give to the sixth congressional district," Rogers said.

"I believe in being a full time congressman and it is my fervent desire to carry on in the tradition of my father, which my father represented the people in the sixth congressional district."

Rogers' statement follows: "I am announcing my candidacy and intention to qualify as a Democratic candidate to the Congressional seat recently made vacant by the death of

FRYERS 33c DRESSED AND DRAWN WHOLE POUND

Friday, December 10, 1964

The Belle Glade Herald

W. C. RAMFORD
here. I hope they will forgive me if I have misinterpreted parts of the law, after all, this is a monumental subject, and omissions and a fair amount of misinterpretation should be granted most anyone.

Changes in the reporting of income are not numerous, the most important of which may be summarized as follows:

(1) The first $50.00 of Corporate dividends may be excluded, with a further credit of 2% in 1964 and 4% thereafter against the income tax for dividends in excess of $50.00 received during the year. In the case of a joint return the initial credit is $100.00 if both husband and wife received dividends in excess of the $50.00.

(2) Uninsured health and accident benefits may be excluded under certain conditions. This removes the inequity between an insured and an uninsured set-up for the benefit of employees.

(3) A more liberal allowance has been made in reporting retirement income. This feature of the law is rather complicated as to qualifications but it is now possible for a retired married couple without dependents to receive retirement incomes (that is, pensions, annuities, interest, rent and dividends) up to $53,333 tax free.

(4) Qualified persons who are 65 years of age or older may deduct the first $1,000.00 of retirement income. If both husband and wife have retirement income $2,400.00 may be deducted. This, added to the $1,200.00 exemption of each person over 65 allows the amount above to be earned tax free. A different method of computing the income from annuities is permitted also. This takes the life expectancy into account and is slightly more liberal than under the old law.

(5) The interest element in the proceeds of life insurance paid in installments to widows is now exempt up to $10,000.00 per year. This is not available to other beneficiaries.

(6) Meals and lodging given employees are not taxed to him when they are furnished for convenience of the employer, even if they are considered part of the compensation.

(7) Scholarships and fellowship grants are generally exempt, but amounts earned in part time employment in connection therewith are taxable.

(8) Prizes and awards are taxable, except the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes.

There are a few other changes that effect income but above constitutes the bulk of them.

The changes in deductions are quite numerous, and following is a sketch of the most important.

(9) The dependency credit has been extended taxpayers with children under 19 or students of a full time school (for at least 5 months during the year) who earn over $600.00 but who are not self supporting. Thus, the dependent may claim the $400.00 on his tax return and the parent also.

(10) If two persons now contribute to the support of an individual, by agreement one taxpayer may take the dependency credit one year and the other the following year, determining the deduction from year to year. The "head of the household" benefits are extended to a person maintaining a home for a dependent at a different location. This can be either a child or a parent. Formerly they were required to live with the taxpayer.

(11) The filing date for individual and partnership returns has been extended to April 15. Corporation, however, are still required to file by March 15.

(12) A Declaration of Estimated Tax is required of single persons earning $5,000.00 a year or more, and married couples earning $10,000.00 a year or more on income subject to withholding, and for persons having income not subject to withholding of $10,000 or more.

(13) All individuals may now file a final return before January 31 in lieu of the fourth installment on the deductions.

(14) Medical expenses in excess of 3% of the gross income are now allowable instead of the 5% under the old law.

Where the taxpayer is 65 or over all of the medical expenses are allowable. However, under the new law expenditures for medicine and drugs may be deducted only by the amount they exceed 1% of the gross income.

(15) Carrying charges on installment purchases up to 6 percent of the average unpaid balance may now be deducted as interest. However, this is limited to the portion of payments made during the year.

(16) Employees such as outside salesmen may now deduct business expenses against gross income, but at the same time claim the standard deduction on page 3 of the return if they so elect. This ordinarily would be for travel auto expense, meals and entertaining customers.

(17) Contributions may now be deducted up to 30% of the gross income as against 20% under prior law, but the extra 10% must go to churches, schools, hospitals, etc.

(18) A deduction for outstanding loans may now be carried back 5 years.

(19) Partners' salaries are now taxable to the partner and deductible by the partnership. Formerly these were treated as a share of the profits, but in the partnership had a fiscal year ending June 30 and the partner had a calendar year end—instead of reporting salary or other fixed distribution out of the partnership as a share of the profits, he would now report the amount he actually received during the calendar year and of course that amount would be deductible on the partnership form.

(20) Death of a partner will not close the taxable year of the partnership. The income or loss is taken into account on the estate income tax return.

Under certain conditions partnership and sole proprietorships may now elect to be taxed as corporations. However, this would be advisable only if the owners were in a very high tax bracket.

(21) A deduction up to $400.00 for child care expenses may be taken by a working mother or divorced person. The child's age is limited to 12. This is not allowable where joint income exceeds $5,100.00. Working mothers must file a joint return.

(22) Divorced or separated persons may claim child care deduction even if the child is supported by the father and the $400.00 dependency allowance is claimed by him.

Payments to relatives will qualify if relative is not a dependent of the taxpayer.

(24) Expenses of last illness may be deducted on the final return of a decedent, if paid within a year and are not claimed as an estate tax deduction.

(21B) A court decree is now unnecessary to allow separate maintenance payments to a divorced wife. The payments are deductible by the husband. A written separation agreement now is all that is necessary.

(2) Farmers may elect to expense rather than capitalize soil and water conservation expenditures such as ditch and sod dikes on land in use in farming. This does not apply to the clearance of land. This deduction may be taken only against farm income and is limited to 25% in any one year. However, the undeducted portion may be carried forward to future years.

(23) Depreciation may now be taken as an accelerated basis in the first years of ownership. This should be especially beneficial to farmers, who own a lot of expensive equipment. Thus, the depreciation on a 5 year item can be as much as 40% of the cost the first year.

(24) Sub-divided real estate sold by non-debtors will be recognized as a capital gain on the first 5 parcels sold.

(25) Bad debts on transactions entered into for profit may now be deducted as an ordinary loss instead of a capital loss as under prior law.

(26) Restrictions have been placed on the number of new partnerships that can be formed in the case of a partnership. Generally they must coincide with the year end of the partnership.

(27) Corporations earning $100,000.00 a year or more now file a declaration of estimated tax and pay in advance similar to that now required of individuals.

(28) The operating loss carry-back of corporations may now be carried back two years instead of one as formerly.

(31) Accelerated depreciation mentioned before is also available to corporations.

(32) Contributions are still limited to 5% of a corporation's net income but in the case of a loss year, these may be carried forward for two succeeding years.

(33) Deductions for estimated expenses such as taxes and interest are now allowable to taxpayers who keep their books on the accrual basis.

(34) Generally speaking good accounting practices will now be accepted as a good tax practice. Formerly there were many instances where good accounting practices were not acceptable.

(35) There are numerous other changes that effect corporations but these are of a technical nature and are not of interest generally.

(36) Most of the above changes are available to taxpayers for the calendar year, 1964.

Social Security:
(37) Beginning in 1955 self employment social security has been extended to farmers.

(38) Beginning also in 1955 farm labor earning $100.00 or more in cash are subject to old age benefits but not to withholding.

(39) Domestic earnings $50.00 or more in cash in a calendar quarter are subject to old age benefits but not to withholding.

(40) The base rate on social security will go up from $3,600.00 to $4,200.00 in 1955.

(41) Ministers and governmental employees may now be subject to old age benefit tax if they so elect.

(42) Still excluded from self employment social security are lawyers, doctors, and veterinarians but not accountants.

(43) After 1955 persons employing 4 or more persons for a total of 20 weeks during the calendar year will be subject to the Unemployment Tax. Agriculture is still exempt.

(44) Life insurance may now be arranged so that it will not be taxable to an estate.

(45) Estates by entirety will now use as a basis for resale the value at date of death rather than at cost under the old law. Agriculture is especially helpful in this area where prices of real estate have increased over the years and so much of the property is in the names of both husband and wife.

NEW POSTAL REGULATIONS
gations offered, its publication date was moved up to the present, December 1.

The final regulations have been filed with the Division of the Federal Register in Washington, and became legally effective on December 1.

Postmaster Farnall noted in the new pamphlet and the new $2 package deal give the business and other people who use the easiest, most complete method of keeping completely up to date on postal regulations that they have ever had.

"The new publication is remarkable for its simplicity," said Farnall. "Not only is it printed in easy-to-understand English, but it contains simple black and white illustrations on how to prepare material for mailing. The print is easy to understand, and is arranged in logical sections under bold-face headings.

Not only are the regulations issued in new simplified form, but the rules themselves have been changed. A great deal of obsolete and conflicting material has been eliminated in the process."

The new booklet is so simple that if the shipping clerk, for example, in a small business is ill or absent, other employees can get a ready understanding of the postal rules from the publication, Mr. Farnall said.

The booklet is also an invaluable guide for the average householder. It shows, for example, how to package fragile materials for mailing; how to attach first-class letters to packages; how stamps of unwanted denominations that are unused may be exchanged for others of different values if desired. It also tells about many other matters of special interest to all mail users.

Mail users who have inquiries about any special points in connection with the new publication may direct them to the local Post Office. It should be emphasized, Postmaster Farnall said, that the booklet represents the "final word" on all postal rules.

The exciting new idea behind the motoramic Chevrolet

Maybe once in a car-buying lifetime, you come across something that breaks all the old patterns and establishes new ones. This is that kind of car. This is the true story of how Chevrolet and General Motors shaped a new idea in steel.

Like most good ideas, this one is pretty simple. Chevrolet and General Motors set out to build the first low-priced car that would:

- bring you the very freshest and finest styling to be had.
- bring you the most advanced engine design and engineering features.
- bring you the kind of performance and the kind of ride that have been available before in a low-priced car.
- bring you the highest quality of manufacture and materials.

All this in Chevrolet's price field? That did take some doing! And isn't it logical that only Chevrolet and General Motors have the people, skills, resources and facilities to carry out this exciting new idea? Here is how this new Chevrolet changes all your ideas about cars.

Real Show-Car Styling!
You get all the Motoramic Chevrolet is in styling "path-pipe" job. A ratchet, low profile, a soft nose, a new outlook for styling.

It's the mid-level Sweep-Right windshield... a new outlook for styling. And that outlook doesn't change when you slide inside... exciting fabrics and trim are harmonized with the new Motoramic Chevrolet.

And out there spring rains mean new balance in turns... turns made as easy as a good tax return. And when you stop suddenly, new Anti-Dive braking control checks that nothing down in front... you get "heads up" stoppage. No other gas pedal gets action like this!

THIS pedal does more than just feed gas to an eager and high-powered V8 engine.

When you give it the extra nudge that moves it beyond the full throttle position, something happens that never happened before in an automobile.

You hear a businesslike purr; which tells you that twenty power vanes, deep inside the 1955 Dynaflow Drive, have changed their pitch—just like the variable pitch propellers on a modern air liner.

And with the same result in the way you get-up-and-go, with a safety-surge of power for pulling out of a tight spot on the highway.

Words can't describe it. It's a new sensation—something you simply must try for yourself.

There's nothing like it on the 1955 new-car horizon.

Fact is, there's a whole lot to see and sample at your Buick dealer's.

There's fresh new styling. There's higher horsepower in every Buick V8 engine. There's a new Airpower carburetor. And beneath it all there's good old-fashioned integrity in every nut, bolt and rivet.

But, this year, don't simply make a visit to the showroom where these trim and thrilling new beauties are on display.

The smart thing to do—if you want to know what's what in new automobiles—is to get behind the wheel of a 1955 Buick and drive it. How about doing that soon?
